

Someone build the missing link

A DISTANCE of just 5km between Carlingford and Epping is the difference between the Epping to Chatswood Rail Link and the Parramatta to Chatswood Rail Link.

Under the National Growth Areas Alliance, councils have banded together seeking to spend up to $3.1 billion of money from the Federal Government for local infrastructure projects.

However, just as Prime Minister John Howard did last week when he committed $40 million to Devonport's Mersey Hospital in Tasmania, there is a case to be made for the Federal Government to override the trouble-plagued NSW Government and build the missing 5km link between Carlingford and Epping railway stations.

Residents don't much care for who's responsible for finishing the Parramatta to Chatswood Rail Link.

They just want it completed, as promised.
